

ABSTRACT

The invention creates a capability within the network management software application to highlight the path through the network for a selected lightpath. The user first selects a lightpath and then turns on the highlighted function. When highlighting is on the user can navigate through the network manager and visualize the lightpath shown by different colours for example dark blue for working and light blue for protection. At the network level, this enable the operator to see the routing of the path.